"The Little Duchess."

The Countess von Hatzfeldt, the ar of "The Little Duchess" com

star of "The Little Duchess" company, which comes to Holland's opera house Jan Itth, is one of the cleverest women on the musical comedy stage. For three years she was the bright, particular star in the "Burgomaster" and "The Storks."

Handsomer costumes than 'those paed in the production of "The Little Duchess" cannot be found in any musical comedy or light opera now before the American public. The Parisian gowns worn by the "Sadie" girls in the second act are the handsomest gowns seen on the stage in years.

The Spirit of Winter.

The Spirit of Winter is with us, making its presence known in many different ways—sometimes by chreme sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and binding atoms. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, care hecemes more amoving, and twists harder, twinges sharper, ca-harrh become more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not mach poetry in this, but there is truth and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these aliments. The medecine that cures them—Hood's sarsaparilla—is-easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.

Things in Country.

She lives in a small town in the middle west. Strange to say, the highest praise that I ever heard bestowed on Bird. Center came from a foreigner, a celebrated German architect, who had designed a soldier's monument for one or our western capitals, and expressed our patriotic ideals for as in public works in several cities, says Elizabeth O. Cuppy, in Public Opinion. "When I first went to your country," he said, "I visited In public works in several cities, saysElizabeth O. Cuppy, in Public Opinion. "When I first went to your country," he said, "I visited only the cites, and there I looked in vain for anything peculiarly American, distinctly democratic, in your social life. I saw only a new version of London, Paris or Berlin, a raw reproduction of the social order of the old world. But when I became acquainted with some of your little towns, there I found a phase of life quite unlike anything we know in Europe, quite superior to any social organism we have yet developed. There your people seemed really to believe that men are created free and equal. The same privileges and opportunities were enjoyed by all. Men of all occupations and professions met on the same social footing. I have seen one of your senators walking along the street in friendly conversation with the man who made his clothes (the architect had no nose for political mice). I have been entertained by ladies who did their own work without fear of losing caste, who, discussed art and foreign polities with me without suggesting the blue stocking or the new woman. These communities were often centers of culture and education; each shared his best with his fellows; and all seemed united in the bond of mutual improvement.

"An Englishman once gave me his opinion that town life was the most satisfactory mode of living in America. There is too much hurry and worry in your cities, he said, too much hard work and too great isolation on your farms. Only the very rich among you can really enjoy either city life or country.life. For the man of moderate means the small town offers the greatest advantages.' A distinguished French woman who had been the guest of one of the professors of an Illinois college wrote in her published impressions of America: 'I found a real Utopia, a woman's paradise, a place where living was simple and natural, where no artificial barriers had been erected, where housekeeping was reduced to its simplest terms. My hostess and her three daughters did most of the work of the house; the one who served us gracefully at the table played the piano with more than an amateur's skill; another chattled fluently to me in French while she made my bed; all three were students in the university from which their father and mother had graduated in the same class.' mother had graduated in the same

Little Insect Fires Off Puff After Puff at Intruders and Beats Hasty Re-treat Under Its Cover.

"I want you," said an instructor at the University of Pennsylvania, "to see my new beetle. He fires off a gun."
"A trained beetle, eh?"
"No, indeed. This beetle has a natural gun, and fires it of his own accord. There is no training. Watch."

The beetle was a burnished The beetle was a burnished blue, with a red head and red legs. He lay hidden under a stone in his box. The instructor advanced his finger slowly; the beetle waited, watchful and intrepid; the finger almost touched the insect, and then—puff, a cloud of blue smoke shot out, and under cover of this smoke the beetle beat a rapid retreat.

"Isn't that marvelous?" the instructor said. "And the little rascal can emit puff and puff—can fire gun after gun—19 or 20 to the minute. No wonder he is called the bombardier, is it?

"This bombardier beetle ls rare. He has in his body certain glands secreting a liquid, which, on contact with the sir, has the curious property of turning into a smoky vapor.

"The vapor is his defense against bigger beetles. Hidden under it, he seeks a new retreat."

Stock Law.

The rapid strides made by the city furing the last few years emphasized the fact that we no longer live in a country town, but a live, growing, enterprising city that must keep step with the march of progress. One of the relies of provincialism, that I would like to see abolished is source of embarrassment of all citizens who point to Hopkinsville as an authority of the citizens was pellocy that has long since beat abandoned by all progressive cities. This question is one that should be attended in a business like way by the passage of an ordinance to take effect not later than April lst, making it unlawful for any kind of live stock to run at large in the city. It is manifestly unjust that a heavy fence tax should be imposed upon the whole city in order that a minority of the citizens may be permitted to turn their cattle into the streets where there is no pasturage Profanity.

Many complaints have come to me from citizens who desire the enforcement of the ordinance against the use of profanity and indecent language in the city now has two members where there there is no pasturage permoted to turn their cattle into the streets where there there is no pasturage of the city now has two members where there there is no pasturage profession that streets and in public places. from citizens who desire the enforcement of the ordinance against the use of profamity and indecent language on the streets and in public places. Especial complaint is made that prisoners in the city lock-up often use the most profane and vulgar language fit the hearing of the family of the keeper and in the presence of prisoners not always as depraved as themselves. Profane and obscene language is prohibited in the city, when it is offensive to any one, and an shorcement of the ordinance would meet the hearty approval of a large proportion of the people. Hope the law will be better observed in the future.

gon. I am informed that the livery bill in this department is usually from $20 to $35 per month." Most of this is for buggies used in making arrests. A patrol wagon and horse should be provided and kept near the police headquarters and this expense of several hundred dollars a year thereby saved to the city. The same horse could be utilized in case an officer had to be mounted to puran officer had to be mounted to pur-sue an offender beyond the city limits, as is frequently the case.

Neglected Ordinances. Neglected Ordinances.

There are many ordinances that have so long been neglected in their enforcement that their very existence is unknown to the public. The failure to enforce these laws has caused some abuses to grow up in the city that, in my judgment, should be conservatively and carefully considered. If conditions have so changed that it would be unwise to enforce these ordinances, it would be reforce these ordinances, it would be changed that it would be unwise to enforce these ordinances; it would be better to revise them. in order to simplify the duties of the officials held responsible for the enforcement of the laws. I shall not at this time point out the laws referred to, further than to call your attention to the existence of many such. I shall enforce all laws given me to enforce and shall not knowingly hold myself amennable to the charge of neglect tof duty.

will be known as the Corporations Committee.

In view of the fact that the city expects to reach out for more factories, mills and workshops, I have thought it advisable to. add a new committee to be known as the committee on Publicity and Promotion.

It is also expected that the city will soon have need of a committee to consider a park, a market house, a permanent hospital and other public grounds. A committee to have charge of these matters will be designated.

The Building Committee will also have its powers enlarged to include the supervision of such city improvements as may be made from time to time. It will be the duty of this committee to grant permits for new buildings of all kinds and to see that the ordinance specialing to buildings are carried out. Many buildings have from time to time been exected in the city, in utter disregard of the ordinance prohibiting the erection of any kind of a covered structure without a permit from the proper committee of the Council. Obstructing Sidewalks.

The Chief of Police has been instructed to enforce the law prohibiting the obstruction of sidewalks. This has grown to be a nuisance that should no longer be tolerated. Idlers have no right to take possession of the pavements to hold levees, while lodge are compalled to walk in the ladies are compelled to walk in the streets. The law is already adc-quate and I am sure the good effects of its proper enforcement will soon

The Social Evils

The Social Evils.

Since the days when Joshuasp ared the house of Rahab, the harlot, in the fall of Jericho, the social evil has been one that every city has had to deal with. The experience in every age has been that this evil cannot be surpressed. At best it can only be regulated to some extent. The presence of a cordon of unregulated bawdy houses just outside the city limits constitutes a serious menace to the good order of our city and unfortunately one that cannot be removed without the co-operation of the county authorities. Nearly all cities, to avoid just this condition of affairs, have found it, the part of wisdom to tolerate and confine such houses to a redlight district within their own jurisdiction. The time will come as these houses multiply and extend their zone of baneful influence, when this problem may have to be solved in some such way. I have to be solved in some such way, and the control of the city and regulated, and while they are outside the city limits they cannot be interfered with by the city. But some corrections are the control of the city and regulated, and while they are outside the city may be and should be taken inside the city. There is an the laws. I shall not at this time point out the laws referred to further than to call your attention to the existence of many such. I shall not at restriction and shall not knowingly hold myself amenable to the charge of neglect of duty.

Financial Matters.

I am unable at this time to discuss the finances of the city, for the reason that the reports upon which such a discussion would be based will be submitted subsequent to the preparation of this address. I am informed that the sinking fund and school fund were drawn upon temporarily for several thousand dollars to meet the demands. This sum, however, is represented in aubstantial permanent improvements, chief among them being the new quarters for the Fire Department so urgently, making the standing to the present year handicapped by this transfer of funds, but feel confident that by careful management and by economy in expenditures, the fire day the free Department so urgently management and by economy in expenditures, the fire day the free Department so urgently management and by economy in expenditures, the fire day that the day of the confident that by careful management and by economy in expenditures, the fire day the free Department so urgently management and by economy in expenditures, the fire day the fire per per funds the fire of the fire day that the day of the citizens favored imaging the fire day that the day of the committee of the fire day that the day of the citizens favored imaging the following proposition of the day of the citizens favored imaging the following proposition would take a portion of Dalton's the committee composed of Councilmen Jackson, Davis and Clark.

ARE THE STARS INHABITED?

Question Arises Among Astrono Whether Other Planets Are Like the Earth.

Astronomers can see with a great modern telescope at least 100,000,000 stars in the entire universe. The question arises: "How many other bodies like the earth exist in space?" Prof. 7.4.J. Sec., of the United States navy, claims that the study of the double stars tends to support the contention of Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace that the universe is not inhabited except the earth alone. In 1896 Dr. See published a work on the orbits of all the double stars which could be determined at that time, size purposed a work of the do-bits of all the double stars which could be determined at that time, and he found the double stars so different from the solar system in that he says no other system like that to which the earth belongs is known to exist in the heavens. The double stars revolve in orbits of high eccentricity, and the two members of a system are usually qual or comparable in mass, while the planets of the solar sys-tem move in very circular orbits and have masses which are infin-itely small compared to that of the sun, about which they revolve. The result is that the solar system affords equable conditions of heat The result is that the solar system affords equable condicions of heat and light, such as organic life requires, while the system of the double stars would furnish such great changes of light and heat that life could not survive on a planet attached to a member of a double, such as Sirius or Processon.

cyon. The sun has a mass 746 times greater than all the planets combined, and this makes it an autocrat over the planets, whose motions it dominates absolutely. The double stars are in reality a system of double suns, and mather than the could not move safely and quietly in such a system. That it would n such a system—that it would cooner or later come into collision sooner or later come into collision with one of the stars, or be driven from the system never to return, in either case destroying the chances of organic life. The number of dark bodies in the heavens is immense and, of course, it is possible that some of these may possible that some of these may afford conditions suitable for or-ganic life, but up to this time as-tronomers are unable to point to a single body of this kind outside of the solar system.

Of dark planets attending the stars Dr. Sow writes: "If such in.

stars Dr. See writes: "If such in considerable companions as our considerable companions as our sun possesses attend the fixed stars, they would neither be yisible nor could they be discovered by any perturbations which they might produce. It is, therefore, impossible to determine whether the stellar system includes such bodies as the planets, and we are thus unaware of the existence of any other system like our own. On the other hand, the heavens present to our consideration an infinite number of double systems, each of which is divided into comparable masses. These double systems stand in direct contrast to the planetary system, where to the planetary system, where the central body has 746 times the mass of all the other bodies com bined."

"Woad" in England.

Present-day Britons and their ancestors of a very long vanished past are brought into close touch by the discovery in a very large barrow near Leek, in Staffordshire, of some of the woad with which the ancient Britons were said to bave dyed their bodies. The woad was found in the form of a bluish dust. In the same barrow, which is being removed for building purposes, has been found a funeral ure, containing some of the bones of a child, and a stone worked into the shape of a heart. Some of the blue woad has been found before in another barrow in the same part of the country.

Scalptor's Error.

A statue of Camille Desmoulins, unveiled the other day in Paris, disappeared from its pedestal the next night and the explanation is distinctly amusing. It was found that most of the garments with which the sculptor had provided the revolutionary firebrand were of the wrong date. The coat and cloak are of a pattern which did not come in for several years later, and instead of knee breeches and large bockled shoes Camille's nether limbs are inoased in very modern riding boots. So M. Pesmoulins is to be re-drained.
